That the spirit of independence will frow in the House case the result of what happened from Wednesday afternoon to Saturday night cannot be doubted. And it will grow in the Senate. It is filted to be many a day before a Speaker of the House, if allowed to make up the committee, takes occasion in so doing to allow his personal feelings to dictate his action.

It is highly probable, however, that personal and the committee, takes occasion in so doing to allow his personal feelings to dictate his action.

It is expected the Republicans will aucus to select their six members and hat the Democrats will caucus to pick the regulars will control the situation an insurgent will be put on the Rules Committee, though for the sake of inducing party harmony, some conces-sions may be made. It would un-doubtedly contribute to a better feeling on the Republican side if at least one insurgent were allowed on the Rules

But so bitter and sore are many of the regulars over the way they were jammed and battered about in the fighting between Wednesday and Saturday that they are not disposed to do any

The House regulars would go far to smooth things over in the House and satisfy the sentiment in the country against control of the House by a small element if Dalzell were kept off the new Rules Committee. But there is no sign thus far that anything of it is probable Dalzell and Smith will be kept on, that such powerful chairmen of committees as Tawney, Payne, Weeks of Massachusetts and Mann of Illinois will be added on the Republican side. While these men, and others aligned with them, who are possibilities, are Cannon men, it would be limpossible for them to run the Rules Committee with the high hand it has been The President's Attitude.

Three days of battiing with his enemies has left Speaker Cannon with even more fight in him than when he began, for his public statement at this stage of the struggle is not an overture for peace, but a taunt of cowardice directed at the insurgents for not voting him out of office.
